SCHOOLS.

To all interested in the subject of education in the town of Wentworth. Be it known that Rev. T. W. Darling of said town, was authorized by the School Board, to look after the general interests of the schools for the year ending March 1, 1890, and the following is a report of his supervision in the same.

Space will not allow so full a report as the writer would earnestly desire, for it might be to the advantage of the public to give in detail an account of the progress made, a deficiency noted in each of the several schools. But it must suffice to speak of the work in its totality rather than to individualize.

SCHOOL BOARD.

1. Let it be understood, that according to my judgment, the School Board endeavored to furnish the pupils of Wentworth with thoroughly practical instructors. In many instances they spared no pains to secure only those who had had a great deal of experience in the school room. I consider that they did the work entrusted to their hands well.

SCHOOL HOUSES.

2. Quite a number of school houses were sadly in need of repair at the opening of the summer term, but at present most of these have been repaired and are in a very comfortable condition. The school house in the south part of the town situated in the Foster district, should be condemned. It is not fit to be used any longer as a school house, even during the summer months. I found the one in the village very poorly ventilated. This matter should be attended to by the beginning of another term. The school houses are deficient of maps. Would that a complete set of maps be placed in each school room. This is something needed very much for the best interests of the pupils.

TEXT BOOKS.

3. I found a large variety of text books in use in the schools, as many as five different kinds of arithmetic, in one instance, in the same school. This was a serious disadvantage to both teacher and scholars. The time has now come when free text books are to be placed in the schools, and it is to be hoped that all the old arithmetics will be laid aside, and one kind only allowed in the school room, and make mental arithmetic teaching, a specialty. The why and wherefore of the principles involved in the rudiments of mathematics have not been sought out by the scholars as they should have been, or taught as thoroughly as one could wish. I could see no special need of a change in many of the other books. I would advise uniformity however, in all the books. I liked much the method adopted in the village school with reference to selecting some choice piece of literature from a standard author in place of the reading book. The spelling books are well enough. The geographies are very good, and need not wholly be replaced by others. What is needed most is system so as to make fewer classes and devote more time to each class. This is the all important point. Allow but one kind of a text book in any given department, and then reduce the number of classes and give them more time. Every class should have thirty minutes for recitation, and there is no school in town, if properly classified, but could devote that amount of time daily, and not omit a single recitation.

TEACHERS.

4. There have been a certain number of schools to be taught, and a certain amount of money with which to employ teachers, consequently a certain amount of wisdom had to be employed in so adjusting things as to make the one equal to the other. I wish the public to understand that they have had some excellent teachers. Some have been worth more than others. Miss Merrill, Miss Hackett, Miss Pillsbury, Miss Lehané, Miss Little, Miss Foster I considered as having had special advantages for teaching. Others did good work, some of whom were beginners however, but intend to complete a full course of study before engaging in teaching. I believe in the Normal method of teaching, and would advise any who think of becoming teachers to patronize the State Normal School.

EDUCATIONAL MEETINGS.

5. During the school year two educational meetings were held in the church hall, at which all the teachers prepared essays, and the public will bear witness to the degree of scholarship made manifest on those occasions. I would advise other gatherings of like nature, that all classes may become stimulated to promote the cause of education, for education is the basis of moral reform, and the greatness of a people consists in the knowledge it has of the laws of God and how to employ those laws to their own edification,

Second term—Joseph H. Merrill, Ina G. Huckins, Flossie M. Merrill.

In closing this report I hereby present a table of statistics, and trust that no error has been made. I think the schools on the whole are on an average with those of other towns. I feel confident that the teachers were faithful in their work. The school year has been a profitable one for the pupils of Wentworth. For the highest interest of all concerned, a graded school should certainly be located in the village.

Thanking the School Board and teachers for the respect shown me during the past year, I remain a friend to education.
